

PLATFORM OVERVIEW

Reconciliation begins with a relationship.

A digital platform for learning, listening, and building meaningful relationships between Indigenous and non-Indigenous people — in their own communities.

A guided welcome

Five gentle steps introduce you: who you are, what you value, and how you like to connect. Plain words, large type — if you can use email, you can join.

A shared learning journey

Videos and readings build a common foundation of truth and understanding, with progress you can see — completed before anyone is matched.

Matching, guided by people

A trained facilitator reviews every recommendation before two people are introduced — and both must agree before contact opens.

Community at local scale

Discover participants and watch regional circles form on the map. Locations stay at city and region level — never addresses.

Conversation and connection

Send a connection request, message one another, and schedule a video call when you are both ready to talk.

Support for facilitators

Progress dashboards, a matching queue, and cohort settings keep facilitators focused on people, not paperwork.

HOW THE JOURNEY WORKS

1

Create your profile

Share who you are, what you value, and how you like to connect — in five welcoming steps.

2

Complete the learning journey

Videos and readings that build a shared foundation for respectful conversation.

3

Meet your match

A facilitator reviews every recommendation. You always choose whether to connect.

4

Build the relationship

Talk, listen, and take part in reconciliation in your own community.

“The relationship is the work.”

Developed in partnership with Reconciliation Through Relationships in response to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada’s Calls to Action.

Reconciliation

THROUGH RELATIONSHIPS

The relationship is the work.

rightrelationship.ca

In partnership with Reconciliation Through Relationships, in response to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada's Calls to Action.